OF THE NATIONS®

Please send your gift by May 28th to protect children like Jacklyne from deadly mosquito-borne illnesses!

April 28, 2021

Dear <partner_informal>,

As night falls over the village of Chirombo, Jacklyne lays down in her bed.

She prays she will actually get some sleep
tonight—prays she will be able to go to school tomorrow morning—prays she won't wake up sick again.

But almost as soon as she lays down, she hears a high-pitched buzzing in her ear. It's the same pest that's been plaguing her every night—mosquitos. Jacklyne tries to swat them away, but she knows it's hopeless.
When she wakes up the next morning, her entire body is covered in bites.

A mosquito net may seem like a simple gift. But for children like Jacklyne, it is life changing.

For many, mosquitos are an annoying pest. For children like Jacklyne, they mean sickness and death.

This tiny creature is the deadliest animal in the world. By far.

Hundreds of thousands of children are killed by mosquitos each year—over half of those deaths are caused by malaria. African countries are the most affected by mosquito-borne illnesses. Countries like Malawi, where Jacklyne lives.

But there is hope. There is a simple solution to protect children and families from the devastating effects of malaria. A mosquito net.

Your gift of $28 will provide 2 mosquito nets to protect children like Jacklyne from deadly diseases.

Jacklyne didn't have a mosquito net, so she kept getting sick. She loved going to school, but she kept having to miss class.

“When I got sick, I was not able to go to school because I was weak and feeling pain, so I was not able to go until I was feeling better. I was missing a lot, because when I got sick I would stay home one week each time.” Malaria can cause fever, fatigue, chills, vomiting, and more.

And it wasn’t just Jacklyne who kept getting sick. Malaria affected all seven people living in her home, including her younger siblings. There was no clinic in their village. When they got sick, they had to travel long distances to get medical care.

Jacklyne’s mother, Liveness, already had trouble providing for her children when they were healthy, but life was even more difficult when they were sick. She had to spend lots of time in the hospital with her children.

A mosquito net may seem like a simple gift. But for children like Jacklyne, it is life changing.

When she and her family received mosquito nets, they stopped getting sick. They stopped waking up with bites all over their body. They were able to spend more time in school. They stopped living in constant fear of mosquitos.

When children aren’t burdened with illness, they can grow up healthy and focus on their education. That’s when true transformation can begin.

You can help children rise up out of poverty and transform their nations!

Please don’t delay. Children like Jacklyne need your help RIGHT NOW. You can change the future for a child today.

Thank you for caring so deeply for children—children who now have hope because of you.

For the Children,

Chris Clark

P.S. Please send your gift by May 28th to help protect children like Jacklyne from the devastating effects of malaria. These children can’t grow up to be the leaders of tomorrow if they can’t go to school today. But your gift will make this future possible.
